City officials, as well as city hall workers, will verify that the turn-out last week for job openings at the Days Inn Hotel, located near the airport, was a tremendous success. More than 1,800 Romulus and surrounding community residents flooded the basement of city hall during the four days hotel management conducted interviews. Days Inn will hire 100 workers, said Marilyn Radford, the city personnel director.

Barden misses cable deadline

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

City council members are awaiting a response from Don Barden, president of Barden Communications, after sending a letter informing the cable owner of his failure to meet a six-month extension deadline.

The letter was sent Feb. 5, just two days after the Feb. 3 deadline for the completion of cabling of eligible areas in Romulus.

A cable ordinance, drawn up by the city council and approved by Barden, states, in Section 6B, that damages of $1,000 per day will be assessed for non-compliance.

"He's been notified and I assume he'll honor his contract," Mary Ann Banks, Mayor Pro Tem said. "In my opinion, we have a contract and it is stated in the extension that he would be subject to the penalties."

No further action is needed to begin levying the fines, Banks said.

Barden asked for an extension of an Aug. 3, 1985 deadline last September.

In a resolution drawn up to comply with the request, the city council allocated Feb. 3 as the new date for completion.

Banks said the council will wait until Barden contacts the city before any further decisions are made.

Barden Tuesday said he intends to seek second extension in order to avoid the penalties imposed by the ordinance and to enable cable wiring completion.

"We plan on contacting the city for an extension and we hope that the council will be reasonable," Barden said in a telephone interview from Toronto. "We are just about completed."

Barden said that weather conditions prevented more rapid cable wiring but that once the "weather clears, we should have the city wired by April."

Banks said she would have preferred to have heard from Barden by the council meeting Monday night. The next council meeting is scheduled for Feb. 24.

"We'll see what he presents to us then before we will consider another extension," Banks said. "I'd have to hear his explanations, see how far along he is and if he can have it done within a few months. I think the citizens have all been patient...and I'd like to know when our schools, city hall and public buildings are going to be hooked up."

Barden notified the council last month that areas designated as A,B and C have been successfully wired. Those areas represent the western half of the city. According to the language of the extension, those areas were to be wired by Oct. 3 and Nov. 3, respectively.

In areas D and E, scheduled to be completed by Feb. 3 and representing the eastern half of the city, approximately 32.4 miles of cable plant are working.

The rest, Barden estimated, should be completed no later than April.

Barden Communications was issued the Romulus franchise in Dec. 1982.

The city received a check for $3,728.19, the amount owned by Barden for the franchise fee for Aug. 1, 1984 through Dec. 31, 1985.

That check came approximately 30 days before the semi-annual due date.

'Employees must live in city,' council rules

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Following up on charges that they are not enforcing an ordinance mandating residency for all city employees, the city council agreed to notify the employee unions that residency will be a negotiable item during contract talks.

Left open was the question of whether they should revise the ordinance or exclude police personnel and other trained professionals.

The city currently employs approximately 172 people. All but five, excluding police personnel, reside within the city.

Virtually all but four out of 36 police officers reside outside city limits, according to a list submitted by the mayor.

"The unions should be notified by union representatives that this will be a negotiable item," Barry Seifman, a city attorney present during a specially-convened residency meeting Feb. 4.

Seifman added that, in an effort to avoid labor disputes, both city unions, the Teamsters and the American Federation of State and Municipal Employees (AFSME) should be notified simultaneously that the residency issue will be a bargaining issue.

In addition, the two police unions will be notified of the decision to negotiate residency during contract talks this summer.

The move to enforce the residency ordinance means that remaining city contracts will be reopened to begin discussion, Seifman said.

The issue of was brought before the council by then newly-elected Councilman Ellis Pennington last November.

He pointed out that most police officers were in violation of the city ordinance and that an effort should be made to correct the violation.

As a result, the council instructed Mayor Beverly McAnally to issue notices to all city employees informing them of the ordinance and requiring employees to update the city council of their current addresses.

Consequently, only a small fraction were found to be in violation of the ordinance.

Six employees, including the assessor, an accountant, and community development director, are under a non-union contract with the city. Four separate employees are union non-residents and one is a non-union employee residing outside the city.

The ordinance provides for exemption from the residency rule for professional personnel under a non-union contract.

They will not be required to move into the city, the council

2 officers suspended in shooting incident

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Two Romulus police officers involved in the shooting of an off-duty Pontiac police officer filed grievances Monday claiming that their suspension without pay from the force pending an investigation is illegal, according to a union representative.

Ron Huggins, president of the Romulus Police Officers Association, said that according to the contract the men may be "suspended with pay from duty by a superior officer."

Section 12 of the patrol officers union contract further states that "suspension may be continued without pay upon review by the Chief of Police."

The men, Huggins said, are claiming that such a review has yet to be conducted and called the suspension without pay a premature move by the Acting Chief of Police John Lewis.

An internal investigation is continuing in the incident that has caused embarrassment and has led to few department comments regarding the officer's behavior.

"An inter-departmental investigation is currently being conducted," John Lewis said, adding that there have been no criminal charges leveled against any of the officers involved in the 12:30 a.m. incident on Feb. 5.

"Each case must be decided on its own merits," he said. "After I reviewed the case, I suspended the men without pay until we finalize the investigation."

The investigation is being conducted simultaneously with the Pontiac Police Department to determine why two Romulus policemen, one a four-year veteran of the force and the other a probationary officer hired six months ago, fired their weapons during a routine traffic stop in Van Buren Township which led to the injury of the Pontiac officer.

Both officers were in pursuit of a GMC Jimmie that was traveling at "a high rate of speed" westbound on I-94 to northbound I-275 and eventually ended their chase at northbound I-275 and Ecorse Road in Van Buren Township.

Apparently, as a result of a computer break-down in the police station that morning, the officers were unable to run the license number of the driver of the vehicle.

This is the reason, according to Det. David Early, the officers did not know that the driver was a former Romulus officer.

The Pontiac officer allegedly opened his window, leaned out of the car and "shouted something at the officers," Early said.

The veteran officer, attempting to pull out his back up .38 caliber revolver used routinely in traffic stops, accidentally discharged the weapon into the ground on the driver side of the vehicle.

Upon hearing the gunshot, the rookie officer, believing his partner to be in danger, Early said, fired two shots from his .357 revolver into the passenger side, injuring the Pontiac officer in the right shoulder.

The Pontiac officer drove himself to the Detroit Industrial Clinic on Middlebelt Road in Romulus, not knowing that he had been injured by a gunshot but believing instead that he was struck by glass frag-

Parents, students angered over violence in school

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

After telling them to "wake up and face the times", parents charged school board members and school administrators Monday night with ignoring numerous incidents of guns, drinking, fighting and threats leveled at students in the schools.

In a mass display of support, parents and students flooded the board chambers, apparently angered over the recent stabbing of Romulus High School senior Robert O'Day Jan.31.

"What parents keep hearing from administrators is that everything is an isolated incident," Richard Szente told board members. "How can all of these incidents be isolated?"

Szente presented board members with a list of concerns parents had over security within the junior and high schools, the result of a recent meeting designed to discuss alternatives to measures already utilized by the district.

"Let's talk about the problems with bathrooms," Szente said. "Kids report being afraid to use the bathrooms, boys are seen leaving the girls bathroom. Bus drivers report drinking on busses, drinking on school property after the games and bullets found in the cafeteria. Why do you keep telling us 'we don't have those kinds of problems here?'"

Another audience member told board members that students were "victims of school administration apathy" and "cover-ups".

"We as parents are appalled and outraged," Dorothy Nesler said.

"There are two places you think you are safe . . . churches and schools."

said. "You seven people are not to blame, the blame belongs to two of your administrators. When are you going to make your superintendent follow the law?"

Szente told board members that "qualified persons trained as security personnel" should be utilized, entrances and hallways more "strictly monitored" and that in-school counseling "must be made available" to students in an effort to ease parents' tension over their child's safety in the schools.

Romulus High School currently employs approximately five security guards who monitor entrances and hallways during school hours.

Szente went on to include stricter disciplinary measures for those violating school board policy, enforcement of rules designed to identify Romulus students through identification cards, and expulsion of any student not a Romulus resident as further steps to avoid student confrontations.

Hospital offers workshops

"Women's Health Issues in the Eighties" is the theme of a day-long Women's Health Day Feb. 22 at Washtenaw Community College. Women of all ages are invited to this forum of health information, speakers workshops and resource center.

The event is co-sponsored by the college and Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti. A similar Women's Health Day last year attracted about 150 participants and program planners are hoping to double the registration this year.

"Women's health is discussed, analyzed, televised and sensationalized every day in the media, at the workplace, over coffee and at social events," reads the brochure publicizing the event. "How do you separate the hype from the facts?"

Giving the facts on a number of current health topics is the goal of the program. Participants will have 11 topics to choose from in selecting three breakout sessions to attend. Workshops will be presented by professionals in each topic area.

Advance registration is necessary by Feb. 18. Interested women may call the college at 973-3528 for a brochure or for further information on registration. The program begins at 8:45 a.m. on Feb. 22 and will be conducted in the Student Center Building on the campus of Washtenaw Community College. The $15 registration fee includes morning coffee, lunch, speakers and all materials.

One breakout session in the morning and two in the afternoon are scheduled for small group workshops on these topics: The Superwoman Syndrome; Living Options for Older Adults; Rape Awareness; Eating Disorders; The Gynecological Exam; what to expect and what to demand from your doctor; Women's Sexuality; Recognizing Drug Dependency in Adolescents; Recognizing Drug Dependency in Adults; Menopause; Osteoporosis and Calcium; Premenstrual Syndrome and Let the Healing Begin; selecting the right mental health counselor.

Luncheon speaker for Women's Health Day is State Senator Lana Pollack, an active proponent on women's issues from the Ann Arbor area.

One of the most popular features of the event that has been expanded from last year is a resource center, where local agencies and organizations for women will have booths with information. This year, a specific time will be set aside for browsing through this information area. The formal program concludes at 3:30 p.m., but women are invited to remain for a reception that offers the opportunity for conversation and socializing.

"Women's Health Day has been planned to appeal to a cross section of women of all ages and interests, particularly with the wide range of topics offered," said program planners. "We've put together a program that offers an enjoyable, as well as educational, day."

Survey deems city excellent

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus is a good place to do business, according to a survey conducted by Michigan Bell Telephone aimed at assessing the level of satisfaction by business operators.

"I think its nice that they appreciate and recognize that the city is good for business," Mayor Beverly McAnally said. "When you read it and it is expressed objectively, from the standpoint that (business owners) are not talking directly to me, the mayor, it is a high compliment."

The survey, released last week, labeled the Michigan Industrial Business Retention and Expansion Study, was conducted over several months last year, according to Charlene Mitchell, a spokesperson for Michigan Bell.

At least 50 Romulus business men and women were asked how they felt about doing business in the city, about the size of their workforce, the kind of industry they operated and how they felt about services provided by Romulus.

"The responses they gave were confidential," Mitchell said, "but overall, they rated Romulus high because of its location and support from the city."

McAnally said the report will be distributed to city council members, after which she intends to tout the high rating to the Michigan Builders Association in an effort to "attract even more businesses to the city."

The survey found that more than 80 percent of those surveyed rated Romulus an "excellent" area or a "good" area in which to conduct business.

At least 28 percent revealed plans to expand their existing facilities this year, an expansion effort totaling more than 100,000 square feet of new building space.

Fifty-two percent are planning to modernize their facilities.

The survey is conducted free of charge to communities by Michigan Bell. Commercial and retail businesses were not interviewed, Mitchell said.

"We conduct these surveys because Michigan Bell is committed to community service and economic development. It makes good sense to us as a company," she said.

"The message we've gotten comes from people who've done business in Romulus," McAnally said. "They are already here doing business and they are obviously pleased. That's not just propaganda."

Shooting

ments.

He was then treated at Annapolis Hospital and released.

The Romulus officers were immediately suspended, Early said.

Disciplinary action will be decided by Lewis, he said.

The shooting incident comes just one month before the trial for involuntary manslaughter of Officer James Khoury.

The death by Khoury of a Romulus resident led some residents to believe that the department used excessive force in breaking up a fight between Hester and another man.

"Nothing like this has ever happened before," Early said. "In fact, there have only been four incidents where a gun was discharged by officers since the inception of the police force."

All, with the exception of the Khoury shooting, which will be determined by the courts, were legitimate uses of weapons, Early said.

The department rules and regulations regarding the use of firearms state that an officer must not discharge his weapon unless in defense of himself or another person.

There is no language addressing accidental discharges of firearms.

A Pontiac police officer Tuesday said that the case has been assigned to a member of the investigating unit in the department.

Historic schoolhouse moved

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

The first school house in Romulus was moved recently to its new location on Hunt Street located next to the Carl W. Morris Post Office.

The historical building was donated to the city by its owners, Howard and Janice Overmyer of Metro Carburator Service on Goddard Road.

Romulus contracted Raynor and Westerman, house movers from Ann Arbor, to place the school at its new location with the use of federal block grant money.

It is expected that combined efforts of the city council, Mayor Beverly McAnally and the Romulus Historical Commission members that the building will become the first historical museum for the city.

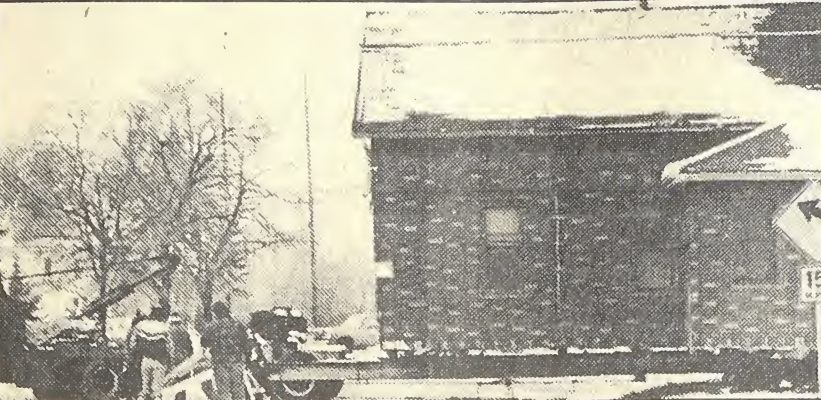

The building, used as a local residence for approximately 65 years, needs restored and renovated, according to Pearl Varner, president of the historical society.

Research into duplicating the original frame of the school house is in progress, she said.

ner, president of the historical society.

Research into duplicating the original frame of the school house is in progress, she said.

In an effort to encourage donations for restoration, Varner said, groups or individuals wishing to donate $500 or more to the project will be entitled to a one-line name on the plaque.

The plaque will be placed inside the front door of the school house to announce benefactors.

The school house, first situated on a site south of Daly Restaurant on Huron River Drive South, had been the subject of much discussion before funds were received to move the building to its current site.

It is the historical society member's first attempts to initiate a method of housing artifacts detailing the history of the city.

Residency enforced

the city," Huggins said. "The city council hasn't enforced the rule in four years. If they do now, well, then we'll see what happens."

Huggins said that no officer lives more than a half hour away from the station, a situation, he said, that should dispel any worries about safety within the city.

"Most of us spend more time here than we do at home anyway," he said. "It's not as though we don't contribute something to the city—we're probable the most visible employees."

Another officer, who asked not to be identified by name, said that he could not think of one incident where an off-duty officer was called in to work as the result of an emergency.

"We have, in the past, called in the sheriff's department and relied on other agencies for assistance but never on off-duty officers," he said.

Huggins concurred and added that if immediate assistance was needed, "surrounding community departments—those involved in the mutual aid program" could be used.

Huggins said that the residency issue was never an item during the first contract talks in 1981. The department faces renewed bargaining this summer.

"All you have to do is call the issue to the bargaining table," Seifman said. "Whenever there is a union contract, bargaining is never closed. You can always negotiate it and if an impasse is reached, then we can enforce it."

Councilman Barry Baumann suggested revising the ordinance to include residency within a 20-mile radius of the city, a move, he said, that is popular in surrounding communities.

Another councilmember agreed that revising the ordinance may be within the best interests of the city.

"Police officers live outside the city for a number of reasons," Alan Lambert said. "Their kids are harassed by other kids at school, neighbors get angry that the officers give them tickets for speeding. I think the officers are more objective about their jobs if they are not living in the city."

"I would like to think that all of our people who work here would like to live here but the harsh reality is that we don't have comparable housing stock to offer," McAnally said.

A section of the ordinance allows for an employee to petition the city council for exemption on the basis of hardship or lack of suitable housing.

"In my opinion, if we had a police department that had been here 20 or 30 years, it would be high time that we would have trained officers from Romulus," McAnally continued. "But we really haven't had the time to develop that idea."

McAnally said that she envisioned offering Romulus residents a cadet training program, one that would allow 18- to 21-year-old citizens the opportunity to serve on the police department if they qualified.

"That's my plan, but until then, I absolutely agree that we should either revise the ordinance if it is not practical or adhere to it," she said. "I'm not comfortable ignoring it."

Romulus man pleads guilty in death of 17-year-old student

A 24-year-old Romulus man charged in the death of a high school senior after he struck the teen with a car pleaded guilty to negligent homicide in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Robert J. Kubicki, of 29221 Goddard Road, entered his plea before Judge Anthony L. Szymanski Feb. 6.

Kubicki was charged with the death of Michael Sperry, a Romulus High School senior, after his car struck the teen Oct. 6.

The teenager died shortly after of injuries sustained in the accident.

Sentencing for Kubicki, which carries a maximum two years imprisonment, is scheduled for March 26.

Sperry, an active student, was walking home from a party at approximately 8:07 p.m. when Kubicki, apparently intoxicated, struck him.

Police said Sperry was walking in the middle of the road when he was struck on Middlebelt Road.

Police said that Kubicki was apparently attempting to locate Sperry to give him a ride home when the accident occurred.

Police may charge 2 youths in stabbing

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Police expect to seek warrants charging at least two more juveniles, one Romulus student and one Inkster student, in connection with the stabbing death of a Romulus high school athlete.

"We do intend to charges against two male juveniles soon," Det. Dan Snyder said.

The juveniles, a 14-year-old and a 16-year-old, were originally brought in for questioning by police in the Jan. 31 of death of Robert O'Day at Romulus High School.

A probable cause hearing for the 17-year-old suspect arrested in O'Day's death was waived in juvenile court by the youth's attorney, according to Romulus juvenile officer John Smagner.

The move Feb. 6 cleared the way for the second phase of the probable cause hearing which will determine whether the Inkster resident will be tried as an adult or as a juvenile, Smagner said.

The suspect, who turned 17—the age the courts have determined one can be tried as an adult—33 hours after allegedly stabbing O'Day in the chest.

He faces a mandatory life sentence if convicted of the charge of first degree murder as an adult.

The second phase of the probable cause hearing will include reports by a probation officer, a representative from the Clinic for Child Studies, a psychologist and a member of the Michigan Department of Corrections.

The incident, which caused an uproar among community members and students at the school, led parents during a school board meeting Monday night to call for stricter security measures in the schools.

The stabbing was the result of three outside students entering the building to provoke a Romulus student, according to police.

Inkster school district officials Tuesday expressed their concern that the public mistakenly believes that the suspect in the O'Day incident is from Inkster High School.

"The media is implying that rivalry exists between Inkster and Romulus schools," George Johnson, an Inkster School Board member said. "The two schools rarely meet (for athletic games)."

Police said the youth attended Robichaud High School in Dearborn Heights.

Violence

High School student, Lorri Bonger, presented board members with a petition signed by 265 students, parents and other residents calling for better security measures in the school.

"We did this as a result of the Robert O'Day incident and because a lot of students don't feel safe at school," Bonger said.

A schoolmate, Tracy Staffield, 15, agreed. The O'Day stabbing, fights during football games and injury caused by students threatening other students on the bleachers during school games are some of the problems, she said, particularly by "outsiders" entering the school premises.

Donna Wilson, a 1975 Romulus High School graduate, told board members that "times have changed—we didn't have kids killed, or kids being threatened then. I just want my child to go to school with the same safety as I did. Times have changed, the security (in the school) has got to change. Wake up and face the times, come up to today, it's 1985."

School superintendent William Bedell said Tuesday that his administration will examine school security and meet next week to compile written replies to each incident raised by parents.

"We receive reports of knives and guns and we always follow up on them," Bedell said. "We're no different from any other metro suburban high school. When you have 1500 students, you're always going to have problems."

Bedell said students caught carrying weapons are disciplined in a variety of ways, including discharge or suspension from school.

"I have yet to process one complaint of the use of a firearm in the school," he added.

Bedell said there was no evidence that students traveling from other areas to Romulus schools are the perpetrators of the incidents brought up by parents last night.

"Generally speaking, and this is very general," he said, "the type of student, the outsider, who comes to Romulus to go to school are those who are unhappy with the standards in their district and are seeking a better environment. They come here and are quiet, reserved."

Bedell said the problems raised by parents during the board meeting are the results of outside students gaining access to school buildings and causing disturbances.

A visit by Detroit school security chief Frank Blount, Bedell said, revealed a lack of graffiti and vandalism in the school, a sign, Bedell told the school board, that students and staff are cooperative.

"I think people are upset," Bedell said. "There are two places you think are safe—churches and schools—so when something like (the O'Day stabbing) happens, you think 'what's going on?'"

The death of heroes

Paul Averill died last Thursday. When I read the chronicle of his life in the Free Press and News it brought back memories. I first met Paul at a meeting in Chicago I attended with my dad back in the '60s. Mr. Averill was the publisher of the Birmingham Eccentric, a newspaper with a national reputation, at that time, for excellence.

I was invited along by Paul for a whirlwind tour of Chicago night life, since my dad had other plans. The most notable event of the evening was my first exposure, so to speak, to a Greek belly-dancing performance.

In 1970, John Reddy, now the editorial director of the Observer-Eccentric Newspapers, discussed Paul's pending retirement and he urged me to pursue the opportunity to succeed Paul as publisher, which I did.

I got to know Paul even better through our discussions, and came to admire him even more. I was at the Free Press then and the future looked bright there, and Paul couldn't seem to bring himself to jump into retirement, so I stopped the pursuit. Paul finally made the move months later and retired to Florida.

His daughter, Barbara, and I would speak of her father at press conventions occasionally through the years, but when you withdraw from active duty in this game, you are thought of only infrequently.

John S. Knight, along with his brother Jim, began the Knight Newspaper dynasty with a small paper in Ohio. Knight's column for years appeared regularly in the Detroit Free Press. John Knight's son tragically died and when his grandson took an interest in the business, Knight was elated. Sadly, the grandson, whom I knew from my days at the Free Press, was killed in a bizarre murder.

I only saw John S. Knight a few times and heard him speak to a group only once, but he was a man to be looked up to and to emulate in modeling my own life and career.

That is, after all, I guess what this is about, heroes and role models. We all have them, no doubt. They are the men and women in our chosen field of endeavor who influence us, impact on us, and help to sculpture us into what we become.

In my case, there have been many that have had a profound effect on molding, shaping, and texturing me as a publisher, employer, business owner, and decision maker. Paul Averill and John Knight were but two.

Apart from my father, the man that probably affected my life both good and bad was John P. McGoff. For those of you who don't know, John was the president of Panax Corporation of East Lansing that purchased these newspapers from my father and his partner in 1968.

Panax continued to own and operate Associated Newspapers until I purchased the newspaper group in November of 1976. I first learned about McGoff through a friend who was in the process of selling his newspaper and printing operation to John. My friend was a fan of John's and sold me on him and his company.

McGoff, at that time, was in his early 50s and had started a company called Mid-State Broadcasting centered in FM radio. John envisioned the future in store for FM but was premature. His company was losing money and the decision was made to get into something more profitable: Newspapers.

The name was soon changed to Panax and the balance sheet from red to black. We were the first of many acquisitions in the three-county suburban Detroit market.

McGoff had vision and saw an opportunity to create something the likes of which Michigan had never seen. His ideal of what might be caught my imagination, and a hero was born. I even recall calculating how many years John would have until retirement and thought that by then I would be ready to assume the throne as president of this new Camelot of the publishing world.

I guess the trouble with heroes is that we are, from the beginning, destined for disappointment because we set our expectations so high . . . high enough that they can not or at least will not be fulfilled.

I had stayed on with McGoff as general manager for a year, then left for the Free Press to satisfy a deep-seated career ambition to find out what big-city dailies are all about.

I think it would be safe to say that Panax was more successful in other markets than Western Wayne County, but overall they found success, if that is what you call wealth, power and influence.

The bloom begin to fade from the rose, I think, as Panax grew and John more and more let others call the shots. We all will recall, no doubt, McGoff's involvement in South Africa, the loan from that government to purchase the Washington Star, a transaction that was never culminated.

Just as Billy Carter was once accused of acting as an agent of a foreign power without registering as such, McGoff was charged and the cloud hangs to this day.

Panax liquidated and John bought the Detroit area newspapers personally. Last year he

Who killed Robert O'Day?

Last week, a young man died. For reasons unknown to any of us, his life was taken from him, just as he was perched precariously on the threshold of manhood.

His death, in the halls of Romulus High School, came at the hand of a 16-year-old Inkster youth, whom police seek to charge with murder. But there are accomplices to the death of Robert O'Day, and unfortunately, each of us may be guilty of a contribution toward his murder . . . inadvertently, insidiously and, in most cases, unconsciously and benignly . . . but guilty nonetheless.

How many of us really watch the television our children watch through their eyes? How many of us see our precious citizens of the future becoming desensitized to death, human emotions and the pain of others as they view murder after murder in living color in their own living rooms virtually from the time they can toddle?

How many of us have fallen victim to the loosening of moral standards in our country today? And we do not mean moral in the sexual sense, but in the Christian ethic of regard for our fellow human being, of respect for other's property, dignity and privacy. How many of us teach our children the respect we were imbued with by our parents?

There have been illegitimate children since time began, as there has been theft, and violence. The difference in our society today would appear to be our reaction to it.

Crime, schemes, frauds, lies, deceit and all manner of evil are a part of our lives, not only through television, but in our movies and newspapers. What we do not do, any longer, is separate those things into the realm of the unacceptable with our children. Manners and good form are a thing of the past, or at least of other societies.

We place no importance any longer, it would appear, on teaching our children a sense of values to take with them into the world outside our homes. Are we too busy? Probably.

We live in a world paced far faster than that of our forebears, and yet, they fought wars, raised families of 10 and 14 children, ran farms, held down difficult jobs and fought to beat poverty from their doors. But they weren't too busy to teach their children that certain conduct was unacceptable and that elders were to be respected, as was authority.

Youth today has far less respect for the authority of teachers, police and parents than ever before in our country. Why? Is it that we have failed to teach it to them? Or is it that authority is no longer worthy of such respect?

"And once again, we should wonder at the lack of values and responsibility toward our fellow man that could allow this to happen."

They see police portrayed on television as drug pushers, dope addicts, alcoholics and thieves. They see priests who provide narcotics to their parishoners in the newspapers. They see the government agencies and leaders charged with our protection in all manner of criminal acts . . . including the murder of the innocent. They see their classmates, like Robert O'Day stabbed in the heart between classes at school.

Do we provide a picture of balance? Can we hide what we have become as a society from the young? No, but we can teach them that it is their destiny to change it. We can teach them to look at others with respect and the common courtesy due another human being. We can imbue them with ethics and standards of conduct which preclude their falling into the trap of violence set for them at every turn.

Two weeks ago, seven astronauts died, and it has just come to light that officials who sent them to their fiery death were informed of the possibility of the catastrophe that took them from their families.

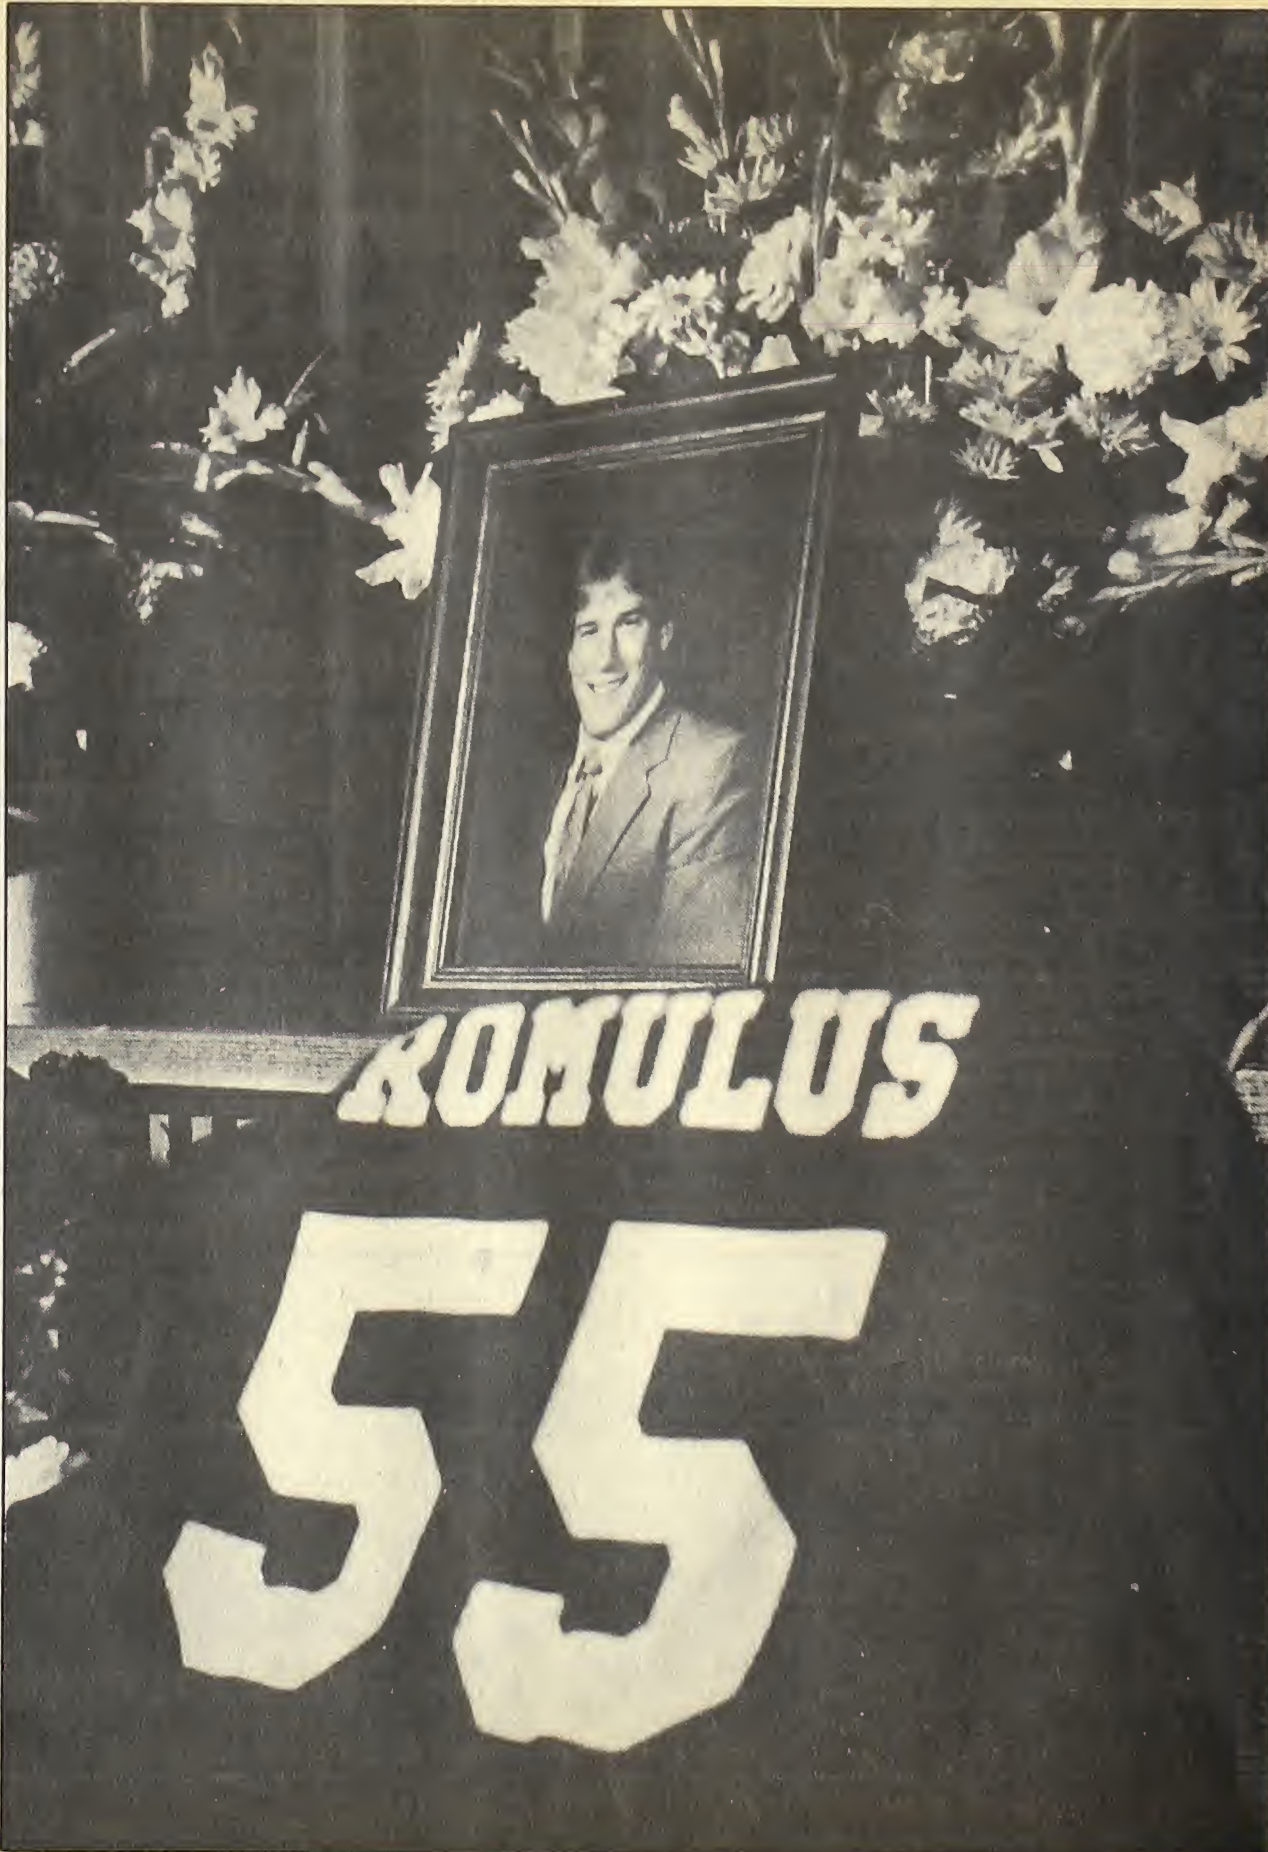

Who killed Robert O'Day? Perhaps the same society that would allow that type of work ethic and pride of workmanship in an endeavor invested with seven human lives.

Perhaps that, more than anything, even the tragic death of a truly fine 18-year-old man, should convince us all that the morals and ethics of our country have gone seriously awry.

And once again, we should wonder at the lack of values and responsibility toward our fellow man that could allow this to happen.

Our young are our hope . . . but only if we can teach them a better way. It is too late for Robert O'Day, and for the seven others who died in the explosion of the Challenger, but perhaps they can show us, in death, a way to save the living, and thereby, the future.

Rink schedule gets cold reception

To The Editor:

Last evening my granddaughter was all excited about going skating at the Recreation Center here in Wayne. There was an open space between 5 and 6 p.m. for skating. She and her friend got there about 7 minutes after 5 and at 5:45 the rink closed for that period of skating, so at the most she might have had 45 minutes on the ice.

That is just for Tuesday night. For those of you who do not know what the schedule is and who might want to skate, here it is: Tuesday, 5 to 6 p.m., ahem! Or is it 5 to 5:45 p.m. On weekdays it is from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Most kids are in school at that time. Saturday is 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday it is 1 to 3 p.m. The rest of the time it is rented out to teams.

Well, there is consolation in that fact. Renting it out helps pay for the ice and upkeep. It seems sad to me, though, that for the people who paid to build it and most of the upkeep, not much time is allotted for their skating benefit.

There are other ways to pay for the ice, 'yuh' know. That is, if the citizens want it. But like the pool, maybe, when a meeting of as many of the Wayne residents as were interested in having a pool was held, eight people showed up.

Something to think about, eh?

Mother pleads with drivers

To The Editor:

PLEASE SLOW DOWN! My children are playing out there! You come down my street as if you are the white rabbit muttering, "I'm late!" Are you in such a hurry to get to or from a place that you are willing to maim, perhaps kill a child, my child?

Yes, my children know to stay away from the street, not to play in it, to look both ways before crossing, but they are only children! You as adults disobey the law every time you come barreling down my street, do you expect more from children?

The speed limit in a residential area is 25 mph, and that is much too fast! Yet I have seen you driving 30, 35 and even 40 mph!

Ask yourself this question before you drive down my street or any street where children play: "If a child runs out in front of me, could I stop in time?"

This is a very dangerous time of year, with slick, snowy roads. Children fall sliding or sledding across the street and cars swerve and skid when applying brakes too quickly. In

still has hope

To The Editor:
I am replying to A. McDonald's concern for the Metro Wayne Democratic Club finding a building for distribution of their food stuffs.
On behalf of the Metro Wayne Democratic Club and its volunteers who donate their time and energy, I would like to thank A. McDonald for his or her concern and our appreciation for acknowledging the great deal of time our members donate each and every month. We sometimes feel no one appreciates our efforts.
We hope to resolve our problem with the help from one of our community-minded citizens who will be willing to donate the much needed space.

Tom Kelly, our city council member, is trying to find us a place. So, I'm sure we will be able to continue our program without any inconvenience to our people in the community.

Our mayor, Patrick Norton, has never been approached about our problem as our club felt it would be resolved soon. So, Mr. Norton, please accept our apologies because we know you care about our problems and our community.

Anyone wishing to help us locate a much needed building to continue our distributions may call 326-5393 or 721-7350.

Bradfield claims
misquotes

To The Editor:
In reference to the article in the Feb. 5 issue of the Romulus Roman (Students celebrate Black History Month), I was very disappointed due to the fact that I was misquoted several times.

I appreciate the interest shown regarding our activities for the month, however, I feel the intent of the article was somewhat lost. A list of the activities that are to take place, dates and times were to be printed and the fact that the public is invited.

Lynn Cleary, who was able to get Wayne County Chief Executive William Lucas as one of our guests, particularly wanted the public to know that they are invited. The date is Feb. 27 at Romulus Junior High, 1:15.

Linda Bradfield

(Editor's Note: Ms. Bradfield has been contacted by our office and the disparities originally interpreted in the article resolved. We are confident the "misquotes" are, in fact, correct while the interpretation of Bradfield's statements may have been incorrect by some readers. The matter seems to be resolved.

Victims of domestic violence will have a better idea of where to go for help, under a bill recently signed into law.

The new law requires police officers to give domestic abuse victims a brochure informing them of their rights and where to go for counseling and other help. The legislation also establishes a 24-hour toll-free hotline to assist victims.

A second bill, approved by the House and currently in committee in the Senate, would have the Crime Victims Compensation Board prepare a standard brochure.

Michigan already had laws dealing with the problem of domestic violence which many consider a model for other states. However, it has been pointed out that despite that law, many victims are not aware of their legal rights and the shelter services available to them.

There apparently are many people who still believe that domestic violence is a part of marriage and are surprised to find, after years of abuse, that there are alternates.

The brochure that police officers will give victims will advise the victim that he or she can file a complaint with the county prosecutor's office and ask for a court order to restrain or prevent the abuser from entering the home, further abusing the victim or removing minor children except as allowed by a custody or visitation order.

The brochure will also include information about local shelter services and the statewide 24-hour toll-free telephone number.

Thus, the legislation provides available to victims and, hopefully, a decrease in the sufferings of families involved in domestic violence.

The earlier laws allow police to make warrantless arrests at the scene of a domestic dispute,

"Thus, the legislation provides for a way to let domestic violence victims know that there are alternatives available to them, including temporary shelters and legal rights and remedies."

for a way to let domestic violence victims know that there are alternatives available to them, including temporary shelters and legal rights and remedies.

The new law and the bill in the Senate strengthen steps already taken to deal with domestic violence. They should result in an increase in the use of services allow courts to issue orders to keep an abusive spouse from entering the home or further abusing the victim, require that police be notified of such orders, created the Domestic Violence and Treatment Board to grant funds to shelter programs around the state, and require the collection of statistics on domestic violence.

then sold all but the Macomb Daily to help fund his growing fleet of dinner cruise ships which includes the Star of Detroit and the Star of Charlevoix.

John now lives unobtrusively with his charming and loyal wife, Marge, in a Williamston, Michigan compound that includes both home and office.

John and his ninjas crossed swords with me a few years ago over some promises he made but didn't keep, and we haven't spoken since that matter was settled.

Nevertheless, John remains a father figure to me, and will remain a man I respect and admire. From the son of a Pittsburgh steelworker to the head of a large publishing conglomerate, John has befriended presidents and governors and courted kings.

Although his crown may have become tarnished in the minds of many who once followed him, John will always be an inspiration to me. McGoff's contributions in time, money, and knowledge to so many, cannot, and should not, be forgotten.

It is not required that we agree with all the convictions, actions, or opinions of our role models and heroes, for certainly I have not always with mine. But there is a style, tone, and sense of daring that we often internalize from watching such men as McGoff, Knight, and Averill. We come to believe that if they could do it, then we can do it . . . if they could dare to be great, then so should we . . . if they could risk and fail, yet come back and fight again, then we should have the courage and fortitude to forge on.

Whether physically alive as McGoff certainly is, or passed on to their reward, as with John Knight and Paul, our heroes remain alive within us all our days to motivate us, inspire, and to catalytically challenge us to fight on for what we believe in as they fought for what they believed in. God bless you all for what you gave to me . . . I will not forget.

Romance, indeed, and what a wonderful day for wishes of love and greetings of friendship to flow. And what would you do, pray tell, if you could have a special valentine from anyone in the world...anyone at all...and it would contain just the message you always dreamed of? That's the question put to several local folks this week, and some of their answers might tickle the funny bone, or provide some very romantic inspiration for next Friday.

"It would be a valentine from my son in Saratoga, Florida, telling me he's on his way home."
— Norma Collop, Wayne City Clerk

"I'd like to get a Valentine from the Michigan State Lottery saying I won at least a million dollars. Then I'd take a good portion of that and send it to feed the hungry and needy in Africa."
— Mel Paulun, Canton Township Fire Chief

"My special valentine would be from Clint Eastwood, because it would make my day. It would say, 'Come out to California, I need a cook.'"
— Delphine Dudick, Van Buren Township Clerk

"Ah, my valentine would come from the last female Lotto winner, for obvious reasons. It'll say, 'What's mine is yours, let's share.'"
— Belleville Police Chief Willard Dockter

"I'd like a card from Sammy Davis Jr. telling me, 'Willie, I'm going to sing your song ALL ALONE AND LONELY on national television.'"
— Willie Johnson, Inkster City Councilman and songwriter

"I want to get a Valentine from Lee, my wife, because I certainly don't have anyone else in mind. I'll leave the message up to her because she always knows which verses are meaningful to both of us."
— Westland Police Liason Andrew Spisak

"If I had my Valentine wish it would be from President Reagan indicating that he will not cut revenue sharing out of his fiscal 1986 budget."
— Wayne City Manager Tom Daily

"I'd ask for a Valentine from the IRS and it would say that I had paid them more than my share last year so I don't even have to talk to them this year."
— Bill Firestone, Barden Cablevision General Manager

Have a heart

Valetine gifts range from mundane to bazarre

By RAY DAY
ANP Staff Writer

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways.

For many local retailers, counting the ways requires a knowledge of advanced mathematics.

Valentine's Day has long been associated with hearts and candy and the patterning sounds of tiny hearts. It was once just traditional to buy one's sweetie the five-pound, heart-shaped, foil-wrapped, bi-level box of assorted candy. Or perhaps the common dozen of long stemmed roses would do. And, all of that would be topped off in the classiest of ways with the 50-cent greeting card that set the mood for the occasion.

That method of Valetine gift giving and receiving hung around for decades. However, this is the '80s, as the saying goes.

Today, one finds every shop imagineable filled with the traditional to bizarre ways to fascinate, invigorate, captivate or show you really care. To do all of this, retailers have stocked their shelves full of the ordinary, the mundane. Hence, we still find the five-pound, heart-shaped, bi-level box of chocolates, only we now can choose between the finest, the richest, the smoothest and the most "chocolatey". Some candy-makers have opted to map out each box describing just what's inside each little piece apparently to discourage that mystery soul who pokes his finger in the bottom of each piece and silently returns the "yucky" ones. What's more, some clever chocolate company thought it ideal to glue those nagging little wax cups together so that the remains of the Valentine gift could be easily disposed of. Indeed, the 80s way of life is a convenient one.

Aside from the traditional, many stores have opted for a different approach to the holiday. Mulholland's Dry Goods in Metro Place Mall, Wayne, reports a run on men's jockey-style heart-patterned underwear. The Country Mouse Attic in Wayne is also stocking the backroom with doll houses by the dozen in hopes that Mr. Wonderful will buy Ms. Wonderful a childhood fantasy this year. And, the owners of the store report booming sales.

The jewelry stores are no exception creating every kind of sale imagineable to "show her you care", "give the lasting gift", or "say what words could never reveal". Leo's Jewelry & Gifts in Wayne reports that a man from Washington, D.C., brought in a garnet, a semi-precious gemstone, and asked to have a heart cut out of the rather large stone and refilled with sparkling diamonds. The store was quick to oblige, of course, telling the man what great love he would be showing with such a unique gift.

The floral scene is not a new one, but the prices are. A quick check of neighboring florists revealed prices for a dozen roses ranging from a "mere" $30 to $65 and up. These prices are up slightly, and in some stores considerably, from weeks before when the mid-winter chill caused a long-stem rose sale. But perhaps one should consider the quality aspect here - roses purchased at inflated prices at Valentine's Day are most likely to be the best of the bunch, aren't they?

Even the card stores have taken on a new 80s look. In such stores one can opt for that time-trodden 50-cent love-and-mush card of old, as long as he expects to pay at least $1.50 for it. Or maybe the special card that plays "The Greatest Love of All" or "Brian's Theme" would be the perfect way to say, "Be My Valentine." Such musical performances by greeting cards don't come cheap, however, with most selling for near $5.

In such stores one can opt for that time-trodden 50-cent love-and-mush card of old, as long as he expects to pay at least $1.50 for it.

But why be cynical? Money is no matter if what the Valentine's Day ads say is true. Step out of that pre-1980s thinking and put that five-pound, foil-wrapped box of candy down, even if it is only the finest candy, with no preservatives added. Venture out and explore the world of Valentine's Day 1986, there's lots to discover.

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways.

Indeed, start counting the ways, but use a calculator - this is the '80s.

ANP photos by Chief Photographer Lothar E. Konietzko

The pitter patter of hearts is just as common among local retailers as it is with lovers this Valentine's Day as merchants fill their shelves with the odd, the strange and the exotic, as well as the ordinary. Doll-houses are big (top photo) as is heart-shaped men's underwear and jewelry of all sorts.

dogs

by dan a morris

Copyright 1986 Dan Morris

An obedience school for dogs is really an institution for training people first, then that knowledge must be applied to the dog.

Many people ask if the training lessons are "guaranteed." Our answer is obvious. If the student does his homework, the knowledge is guaranteed. We can guarantee what we teach to be the correct formula for our students. Yet, we cannot guarantee that once the student leaves our school he will apply the knowledge to his dog. Your dog cannot perform if he has not been taught the proper technique by his trainer - it is no different than expecting a typewriter to operate when no one is depressing the keys.

Working with a dog, or any animal, takes physical coordination and dexterity, which many of us lack. But controlled movements and gestures can be learned by repetition and patience, the dog will learn simultaneously.

A dog is not being taught how to sit, walk, lay down or stand because he is born knowing these acts. What he is being taught is to do it on command, perhaps at a time when he doesn't particularly want to perform.

When a student enters class complaining that his dog will not or cannot do a certain command, he is really "passing the buck." A dog is capable of almost any feat and a simple command is no challenge. What is happening is that the student lacks the knowledge of how to obtain a performance from his dog when his dog is outsmarting him - that's why dog training should be titled "people training."

Naturally all of us, including our pet, have days when nothing goes right and we are inept or clumsy. Ignore these incidents and wait another day. Surprisingly, we all find that coordination is the key to achieve the performance from our dog we are looking for.

It's a simple matter to blame the school, the instructor, and especially the dog for poor performance, but perhaps a mirrored wall would place the guilt on the proper party.

BROKERAGE FIRM REFUNDS INVESTMENT MONEY TO CLIENT

Dear Letter Writer:

I think I have been taken advantage of by a stockbroker. I lost over $8,000 in 13 months. Please help me explain my position to the company.

Sincerely, TG

Dear Brokerage Manager:

On May 16, 1984, I entered into a relationship with one of your investment counselors. I gave him $25,000 to open my account. As of June, 1985, my portfolio was worth $16,812.00, a loss of approximately $8,188.00.

Five years ago, I became a 50-year-old widow with a 12-year-old daughter. In 1984, I received $25,000 in proceeds from my late husband's estate.

During our first meeting, trying to put me at ease, your broker drew the following analogy: "You go to a doctor for your medical problems. You go to a lawyer for your legal problems. I am a money doctor and you come to me for your money problems."

In evaluating and assessing my personal reasons for continuing the relationship from that moment forward, my only explanation was my total vulnerability and naivete. At no time during the period May, 1984, to June, 1985, did I ever feel comfortable or properly informed regarding my Asset Account.

On a personal level, your broker is a very fast-talking, self-assured individual, who exhibits an air of being overworked and exceptionally busy with no time to "go into detail." He is pompous, flamboyant, arrogant and bombastic. He intimidated me on a consistent basis. If I am properly stating the scenario and the general atmosphere of my dealings with your broker, then you are understanding that I was in a state of constant turmoil and felt very removed from my money or any understanding of what was being done with it.

When I received my June 30, 1985, statements, reflecting an $8,000 loss in checks, it virtually emptied my account. My relationship with your broker had deteriorated to the point that I absolutely could not continue to do business with him.

I am writing to you as I would appreciate a review of my account and assessment from you gentlemen as to the manner in which my assets were purchased and sold.

Was my account handled in a prudent way by an expert who is aware of his client's financial situation and reason for seeking investment help?

Is it appropriate to buy on margin for someone like myself?

Why did your broker "punch up" my income and assets on the client information form?

I feel betrayed and abused and would appreciate an explanation as to your company position in a matter such as this one.

May I please have a reaction to this letter at your earliest possible convenience.

Sincerely, TG

RESOLUTION:

During the middle of January, 1986, TG informed that the brokerage firm offered her $5,000 in settlement of this matter. TG accepted and, thereby, greatly reduced her losses.

Terri Marshall, pageant winner

Westland girl wins Great Lakes title

By RAY DAY
ANP Staff Writer

David and Vicki Marshall like to see their daughter Terri cleaned up and dressed in satins, bows and ribbons. The parents of three say that such an appearance is a welcomed change from the muddled look Terri displays after a day of horse riding all about their Westland farm.

Judges in a variety of local, state and national pageants seem to be in agreement.

A third-grader at Sweetser School in Westland, Terri took state honors recently by being named Miss Great Lakes II. Although the triumph is a remarkable feat for the 8-year-old girl considering the stiff competition in the contest, such glamor awards are becoming old hat.

Terri carries a wide-range of pageant titles including First Runner Up in the Miss Metro and Hospitality Pageant, Southern Michigan Little Miss and Homecoming Queen for the Westland Comets Freshman Football Team. The youngster hopes to increas the number of pageant victories under her belt as she prepares to leave for Washington, D.C., North Carolina, Texas and Scotland this year to compete in more pageants.

The Great Lakes II title enables the girl to join the American Star Traveling Team. The team consists of state-title winners from around the nation competing in cities all across the U.S. and overseas. Although the team will allow her to face even stiffer competition, Terri's mother believes it will also allow her to meet some very interesting people, one of the very reasons she enjoys participating in the events, according to Mrs. Marshall.

Aside from her participation in scores of pageants, Terri has recently signed with a modelling agency to star in a kitchen advertising promotion. Even with the $40-per-hour pay she will receive from that job, however, Terri's real interest is with animals, especially horses.

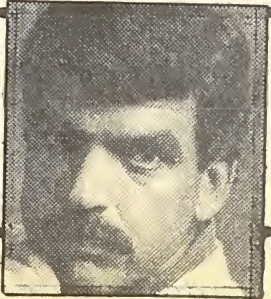

"I love horses and all kinds of animals," the pageant winner remarked. "When I grow up I want to be a veterinarian."

Even though she's content with the girl's affection for animals and the less-than-pretty appearance such a love seems to attract, Mrs. Marshall will never pass up an opportunity to see her daughter donning the bows, the lace and the ribbons. And, based on her aspiring start in the pageant business, Mrs. Marshall feels she may find herself with that opportunity over and over again.

"I like the pageants - they are a lot of fun. I like to see her when she's all cleaned up. It's just a pleasure to watch her on stage - it's a time that I get to spend with her individually."

Fondue

What rhymes with ahchoo and is really easy to do? FONDUE!

Looking for something different for dinner? FONDUE!

Better yet, looking for a different dinner party idea that will help your guests get acquainted in a hurry? Try a fondue!

Fondue parties are cozy fun. No longer are these dunking parties reserved for skiers at fabulous Swiss resorts. Fondue parties are the now, once again, "in" way to entertain guests of all ages for snacks, evening get-togethers, dinner or just desserts.

Our family enjoyed a cheese fondue dinner recently and it was just short of a party with even my youngest getting into the swing of things, laughing and talking as everyone tried to swirl their bread and veggies in a communal pot. We didn't even bother with the traditional heavy pot and long fondue forks. We set the bubbling pot on a trivet in the middle of the table, passed the plates and just used regular dinner forks.

Fondueing is an excellent meal for vegetarians and folks who are into healthy eating. Our basic cheese fondue consisted of grated Swiss cheese, some broth (or wine and beer can be used), a few tablespoons of flour or cornstarch, bread cubes and fresh vegetables.

The cheese fondue was the first and probably remains the most famous of the fondues. Now there are scores of other favorites - meat, fish and seafood ones, appetizers and nibbler fondues, and my favorite, the dessert fondues. All can be quickly, easily and economically prepared and enjoyed by you, your family and guests.

Before going out and purchasing a fon-due pot, think about what and who you will be preparing for. A metallic pot with sloping sides is needed for preparing most fondues that utilize hot oil for cooking. Never use a ceramic or pottery pot for this type of fondue as the oil must be kept very hot (about 360 degrees) during the dinner. The continued high heat could cause a pottery or ceramic pot to crack and break with disastrous results. Personally speaking, the best fondue pot around is one that is manufactured by LeCreuset and is an enameled cast-iron version which sits on a small burner that you can fill with fuel as needed. This little pot is exceptional for cheese fondues because the cheese never gets a chance to burn on the bottom, yet the pot is strong enough to handle any type of hot oil or broth.

Copper pots are too hard to keep clean and presentable (they're also very expensive) and I don't like the quality of the less expensive aluminum and stainless-steel pots.

Fondue forks should be around nine to 10 inches long for a hot oil fondue, but any long-handled dinner fork will do nicely.

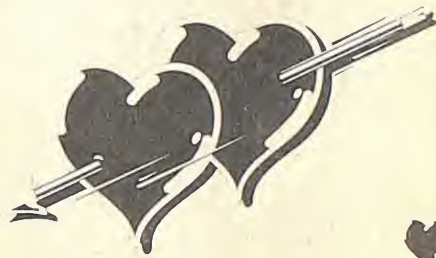

The specialty fondue forks have insulated handles that won't get hot. Fondue plates are divided dinner plates that can hold many different sauces and dips. If you are in the market to purchase a fondue pot, here's a little primer on what to look for when deciding what pot and fuel to buy.

Canned heat is available just about anywhere. The most recognized is Sterno. Small cans holding about two and one-half ounces will burn for about 50 to 60 minutes. To operate, simply remove the lid from the can, touch with a match and you're in business. Professionally speaking, however, canned heat cannot get my hot oil hot enough, so I recommend that you preheat everything on the stove, then use the canned heat to keep everything hot.

Canned or bottled alcohol is widely used in most fondue pots or chafing dishes. The container which holds the fuel is usually filled with glass wool or it has a small wick. Denatured alcohol gives the hottest heat, has less odor and is less expensive than rubbing or isopropyl alcohol. Denatured alcohol can be easily purchased at drug and hardware stores.

Never fill alcohol fuel containers more than half full. To be able to judge the best, allow about 1 tablespoonful of alcohol for every 12 minutes of burning time. Make sure you fill the tank over the sink or a newspaper as alcohol can damage the finish of most tabletops. Be sure to wipe the top and sides with a dry cloth to catch any spillage and NEVER refill a hot pot while it is hot or burning. Extinguish the flame first. Allow to cool slightly, then refill as necessary.

When cleaning and getting ready to put away, make sure fuel is emptied so that an accidental spill and fire won't happen.

Sound complicated? Hardly. Check out the recipes below and see for yourself. Fondueing can be fun!

Fondue-ly yours,
Chef Larry

2 cups cheap white wine dash Tabasco (hot sauce)
1/2 pound Swiss cheese

NOTE: For a family variation, substitute chicken broth for wine and delete kirsch or cognac.

Try this recipe and sprinkle in 1 cup of finely chopped Canadian bacon or ham and use bread and veggies to pick up.

wall street the week ahead

by ron ferenczi

DEAR INVESTOR: The Fed has been moving slowly and cautiously in regard to money management. The rapid increase in the money supply (M-1) is now being accelerated by falling oil prices, which to a degree has the same effect.

To the consuming public, it makes little difference if liquidity is furnished by the Fed or OPEC. The Fed indicated its concern last week by draining funds from the banking system. It would still appear that the Fed wants economic growth in the 3 percent range.

If economic activity exceeds that target, they will drain reserves.

Fed policy may now have to counter the effect of falling oil prices. Last week's unemployment decrease and Fed action to reduce reserves may have sent a chill through the market. This week, interest rates will move to the high side of their recent trading range, but will have a sharper rise if the Fed continues to drain reserves.

Gold and silver traders anticipate the reduction of gold inventory by OPEC members, which will continue to put downward pressure on precious metal prices.

For this week, short-term traders will be holders, hoping a stronger market will carry prices higher. However, some sell programs are ready if the market shows weakness. Intermediate-term traders are "bottom fishing" in major oil stocks, hoping OPEC will reduce production. Long-term traders will continue to sit on the sidelines.

For this week, I see the market opening mixed to up and struggling to move higher. Secondary issues and oil stocks continue to be under selling pressure. However, what looks like a strong upward move in large capital stocks may be masking a broad-based distribution pattern that is developing.

Strong volume, with slight upward price improvement, may set the stage for a market decline. Fed policy statements due at midweek may have a negative effect on the market.

NOTE: New-home sales climbed 1.7 percent in December to the highest level since July; factory orders surged 2.7 percent in December due to large aircraft orders; construction spending jumped 2.8 percent and construction contracts fell 2 percent; OPEC oil ministers failed to agree on how to stem tumbling oil prices; U.S. automakers' sales up only 1.2 percent in January despite sales incentives.

Opinions are solely that of the author, and not that of First of Michigan Corporation. Send investment questions to First of Michigan, P.O. Box B.E., Southgate, MI 48195 or phone 1-800-833-1321 for Ronald Ferenczi. All financial planning, common stock or portfolio inquiries will be answered individually.

Savings Bonds are worth a look

The U.S. Savings Bond, once the ugly duckling of the financial world, has grown into something worth a second look.

"Americans who abandoned, along with their passbook savings accounts, the idea of buying Savings Bonds will be surprised to learn that they might be overlooking a good savings and investment opportunity," said Steven R. Mead, executive director of the U.S. Savings Bonds program.

Bond rates now change every six months, with owners receiving an average of the rates for the periods the bonds are held. Each six-month period is calculated at 85 percent of the average return on five-year Treasury securities.

"Tying U.S. Savings Bonds to Treasury security rates," Mead said, "allows bond interest to go as high as the market dictates. At the same time, the government guarantees a rate of 7.5 percent even if the market should fall below that level."

Bonds must be held at least five years from the date of purchase to earn the market-based rate. Bonds cashed before the five-year holding period ends receive interest on a fixed, graduated scale beginning at 5.5 percent.

"Many people think bonds only pay interest on a fixed rate system," Mead said.

"Tying U.S. Savings Bonds to Treasury security rates allows bond interest to go as high as the market dictates. At the same time, the government guarantees a rate of 7.5 percent even if the market should fall below that level."

Bonds can be purchased with an investment as small as $25, half the price of a $50 bond. For employees of the more than 39,000 companies that offer payroll savings plans for bonds, the investment per pay period could be less.

Payroll savings is an effective way to build the savings habit, but bonds also can be purchased through banks and other savings institutions, Federal Reserve Banks and by mail from the Bureau of Public Debt, Washington, D.C., 20226.

There is no risk on the principal investment in bonds and no brokers fees to complete the purchase.

Depending on one's circumstances, this feature can raise the effective yield on a bond investment to a figure equal to or better than some money market funds.

The tax deferral feature also would work in favor of those planning for retirement assuming that they cash the bonds after retirement when tax responsibility is less due to lower income.

Persons in need of some current income but who prefer not to touch their capital can achieve this by exchanging accumulated Series EE (or E) Bonds for Series HH Bonds, which pay interest by semiannual Treasury checks as it's earned. Tax liability on the accumulated interest on the bonds exchanged can be deferred until the HH Bonds are cashed or reach final maturity.

Program offers free group tax assistance

Groups of taxpayers may receive free income tax assistance at convenient times and locations in their community, the Internal Revenue Service said today.

Known as Community Outreach Tax Assistance, this group assistance program is designed to either help taxpayers prepare their own returns or help them learn about tax law provisions and recent changes of particular interest to them, according to Acting District Director Paul H. Thornton.

"Community Outreach Tax Assistance is especially attractive for many who need help, because the program is offered at convenient times and places in the local community. It's especially meant for taxpayers who are unable to seek help at IRS offices during normal business hours," Thornton said.

Community Outreach Tax Assistance offers self-help tax return preparation in group situations. An IRS representative leads the group of taxpayers through the return line-by-line. Community Outreach Tax Assistance also offers tax information seminars highlighting new tax law or specific aspects of individual, business, farm and other income tax provisions, followed by question and answer sessions.

For locations in your community, call the IRS at 1-800-424-1040. If you are part of a group and would like to set up a free self-help session or a tax information seminar for your group, you should also contact the IRS to make arrangements.

Wayne title express crushes Belleville, 69-47

Zebras post No. 14 cage victory

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Finding little resistance at Belleville, defending champ, Wayne Memorial, coasted to their 14 consecutive basketball victory Friday night at the expense of Coach Leon Birdshaw's Tigers.

The champs jumped on the host 20-8 in the first period and never looked back until they claimed a 69-47 victory over their Wolverine 'A' Conference rivals.

"We didn't play well," said Birdshaw. "It appeared as if we looked intimidated by them. And they (Wayne) aren't an intimidating team. They have a club that works hard and together and I believe that's the reasons for their success."

While Belleville turned numerous balls over and missed what were excellent percentage shots in the first eight minutes, Wayne capitalized on the Tigers' misfortunes and raced to a 12-point advantage (20-8) for the first period. Coach Chuck Henry's boys increased the edge to 39-24 for two and then breezed past the frustrated hosts.

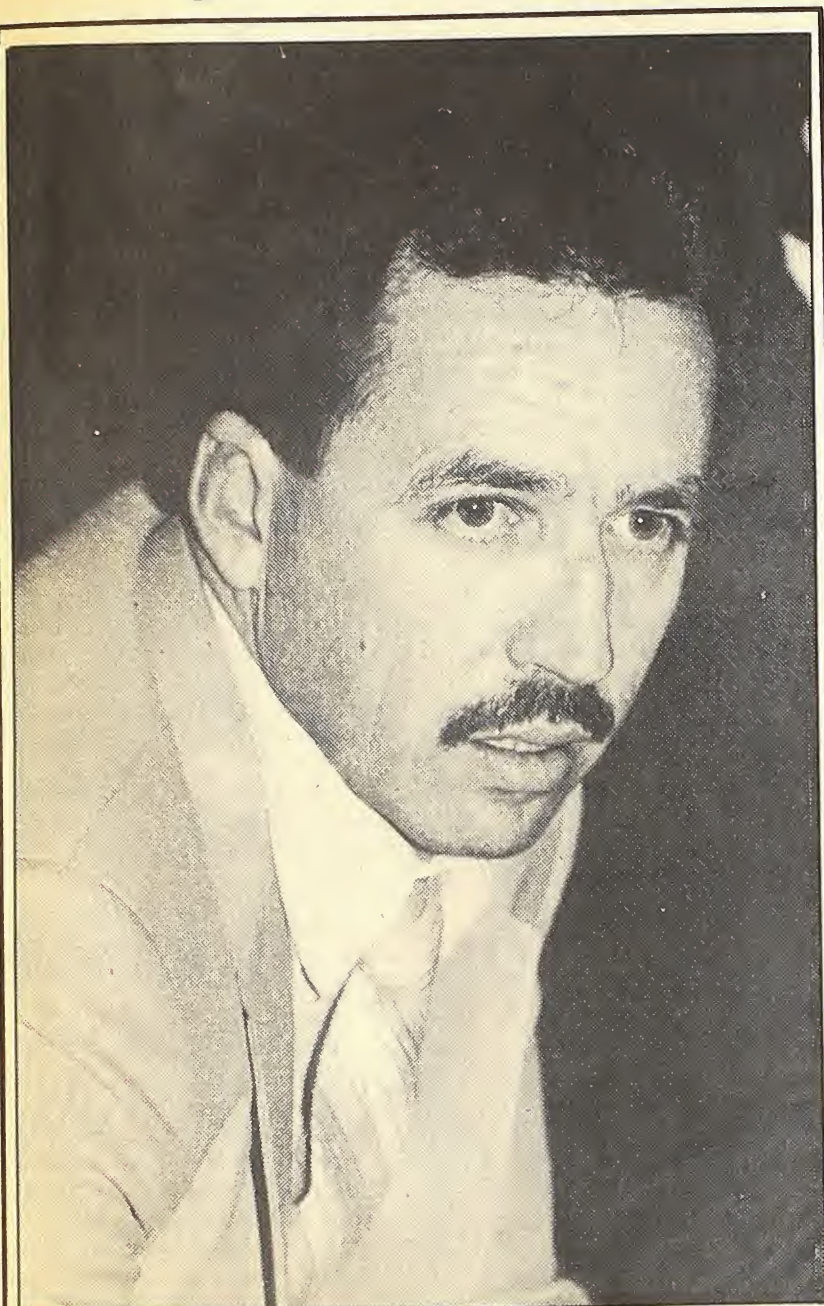

Belleville's league record dipped to 4-5 on the season, while they stand on a 7-7 overall mark.

Spencer Williams and Gary Hankerson led the winners with 14 and 10 points, respectively, while Belleville got 12 points from Albert Tillman and 11 from Maurice Brantley. Wayne outscored Belleville from the field 36 to 22 and canned nine of 18 free throws as compared to the Tigers' three of nine effort at the free throw line.

Wayne is home to Trenton Friday night after clashing with out-of-conference rival, Edsel Ford, last night. In the meantime Belleville will try to recover Friday night at the expense of Wyandotte. The Tigers will hit the road for that one.

With Chris Grantham scoring 15 points, getting 11 assists and six steals, Belleville trounced Taylor Kennedy 68-55 last Tuesday. Lewis Willis accounted for 14 points and eight rebounds while Mike Hardy and Tillman contributed 10 and six, respectively, in the victory.

Chuck Henry is the driving force behind the undefeated and well-tuned Wayne Memorial cage machine.

Henry: The man behind Wayne's cage success saga

By CURT JORDET
ANP Staff Writer

To observe Wayne basketball coach Chuck Henry on the floor at practice after school or at courtside during a game, one would surely think of him as an ordinary high school coach with ordinary dreams and desires.

But Henry is no ordinary man. For while others still secretly hope for the day when a major college or university will recognize their achievements and boost them up the ladder of success, Henry seems to have found the top rung right here at the home of the Zebras.

Glenn makes it 9 straight

Rockets edge North in thriller, 60-58

By KEITH DeMOLAY
ANP Special Writer

The clock on the wall of the North Farmington gym read 0:16, fourth quarter. HOME 56, VISITOR, 58.

The fans on both sides of the gym chomped on their bubblegum a little harder.

Both coaches - Gordie Davis, the veteran from Westland John Glenn, and Tom Negoshian of North Farmington fame - probably had a million thoughts running through their minds.

Then North's Mark Ragland stepped to the free throw line.

Ragland canned both free throws and the game was tied at 58-all. North fans went wild as thoughts of victory danced in their heads. Glenn's fans were nervous but knowing their team would somehow come through.

And they somehow did, thanks to Steve Hawley.

Hawley, who had a lukewarm first half with only six points but had heated up in the second, scoring 17, brought the ball up the floor. The crescendo of noise grew as he neared the basket, and with three seconds left, Hawley paused, popped, and canned a 15-footer for the game-winning basket in the Rockets' crucial 60-58 victory over their arch-rivals.

When North's last-ditch effort to tie the game failed, the entire Rockets squad, including managers Rob Hubbard and Jim Tachar, rushed the floor to celebrate their ninth straight victory, and their 11th win in 15 games this year.

"We found out the character of this team in this game," Davis commented. "We really worked on defense with man-to-man full court. We showed a lot of intensity."

The rest of the game was anything but pretty for Glenn as the Rockets struggled. The first half was a perfect example as North got off to a 6-0 mark on baskets by Rick Anderson and Paul Wahrmann. Glenn kept close in the first quarter thanks to six points from Andy Grazulis and four from Gerry Diete-Spiff. But North still led, 15-10, at the buzzer. The Raiders, whose record dropped to 7-7, 5-7 in the WLAA, expanded that lead in the second period as Anderson hit four points, Corky D'Ascenzo got hot from outside for four, and Ragland's free throws late in the period made it 28-20 at the half.

Hawley sank six points for the quarter to keep the Rockets within eight, but the horizon was not too bright as the Rockets headed for the locker room.

The Westlanders came out ready for the third period to cut the lead to 28-24, then Tony Boles slammed one through the nets and Glenn trailed only, 28-26.

But North took over from there to expand their lead to 40-31 at the 3:14 mark and the horizon looked dark once again for the Rockets.

As Tom Paine once wrote during the American Revolution: "These are the times that try men's souls"...Glenn was being similarly tested and it was time for them to answer.

Slowly but surely, the Rockets began to edge back into the game.

Hawley's completion of a three-point play at the 6:14 mark cut the lead to 50-46 and Greg Bates's left-hand lay-up two minutes later cut the lead to 51-50.

But North answered with an Anderson bucket and Ragland basket by the 3:51 mark made it 55-50.

Back came Glenn with eight straight points for a 58-55 lead, including a pair of Hawley free throws.

Anderson and Ragland combined for three free throws to tie it at 58 that led to the wild scenario and locker room celebration following the game.

Earlier in the week, Glenn had defeated a pesky Walled Lake Western squad, 85-72, getting balanced scoring from Hawley (27) and Grazulis (23), and 16 from Diete-Spiff.

The Junior Varsity raised its record to 14-1 defeating Western, 79-45, as Dave Schnepel scored 18, and beat North, 59-51, led by 10 points from Jeff Graham and Eric Thornton.

Academic ineligibility costly for SAC Conference champ

Inkster surrenders share of lead to Highland Park

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Academic ineligibility is proving costly for Inkster High, the defending Suburban Athletic Conference basketball champs.

With three key players sidelined indefinitely because of inadequate grades, coach George Thompson and his Vikings are struggling to retain their SAC throne.

One thing is certain after last week's setback at the hands of always tough Highland Park: Inkster's bid to become the first team to win back-to-back SAC championship with unprecedented undefeated records dissipated as Highland Park humbled the Vikings, 67-49.

The Vikings bounced back - barely - to edge arch-rival, Robichaud, 63-61, Friday night to remain atop of the standings. They now share top billings with the Parkers.

"There seems to be no standard policy among the school districts about academic eligibility," Thompson said. "One school district's rules can be lower - or higher - than another's."

In the meantime, Thompson has established a tutoring class for those who need help. "I am really frustrated over all of this. When you look at the criteria used (for eligibility) in some of the neighboring communities, they are not the same. There should be something universal for all of them to use."

Without two of their starters, including their leading scorer, out of their line-up, the Vikings struggled past Robichaud. Inkster held on to win, 63-61.

Robichaud eked out a 15-14 lead after the first eight minutes, then both teams exchanged baskets on equal terms the next period and broke for intermission with the Bulldogs enjoying a 29-28 advantage.

Andre Davis provided the Vikings with the impetus and eight points in the third period to pull the defending champs up by four, but neither team managed to hold more than a four-point edge throughout the game. The Vikings outscored their hosts 18-14 in the third and Robichaud came out ahead 18-17 in the finals.

Davis connected on eight field goals and sank 8 of 8 at the free throw line for a game high 24 points. Terrance Wynn, who moved into a starting role when his teammates were ruled ineligible, again provided the Vikings with an outstanding game. He accounted for 10 points and Barry Hardy had 12. Hardy also chipped in with 14 rebounds and Davis finished with 13 caroms.

Ken Covard led Robichaud with 18 points and Barnett and Marshall also scored in double figures with 10 and 12, respectively.

At Highland Park it was a different story. Although Inkster utilized the services of Calvin Hayes, one of the players who later was ruled ineligible, the Parkers jumped from a 10-9 first period advantage to outscore their visitors 20-11 and took a 30-32 lead into the locker room. The champs stayed abreast the third period, losing a 14-13 scoring duel, but never were able to make up the deficit.

"We played a very good Highland Park team," Thompson said. "And they knew they needed this one in order to stay in the title chase."

Inkster returns to the home court on Friday when they will host Ecorse, a team that could disrupt the Vikings' plans for a second title.

Boles to play for Bo

Two members of Westland John Glenn's Western Lakes Association championship football team have signed national letters of intent to play college football next fall.

Tailback Tony Boles (6-2, 194), Glenn's all-time leading rusher and owner of over a dozen records, made his commitment official on Friday by deciding to attend the University of Michigan and play for Coach Bo Schembechler's Wolverines.

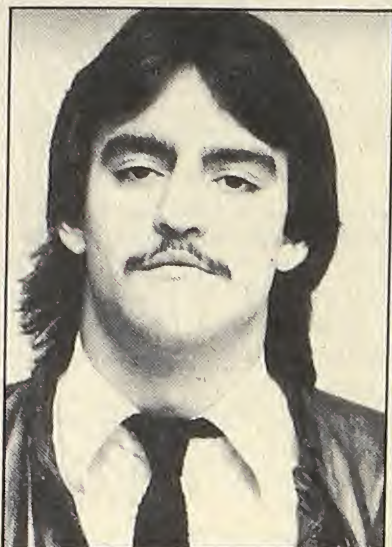

Boles, who rushed for 1,526 yards and scored 17 touchdowns this past season in leading the Rockets to their first state playoff position in school history, will be playing for the school he has always wanted to play for, he says.

Glenn head coach Chuck Gordon is happy for Boles, commenting: "This is a great opportunity for him. He will be playing in one of the premier programs in the country, and a great opportunity to play for one of the top college coaches in Bo."

If Glenn's offense was in good hands thanks to Boles at the tailback position, then the Rockets' defense was

Belleville dethroned

Lincoln Park crowned Wolverine mat champs

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Lincoln Park ended Belleville's three-year domination of the Wolverine "A" Conference wrestling rule.

The Parkers, garnering 170 points, dethroned the perennial conference champs who slipped to fifth place at the conference championships. Belleville hosted the tournament on Saturday.

Trailing the newly-crowned champs in the over-all standings were Monroe (157.5), Dearborn Fordson (112), Trenton (97), Belleville (90), Wayne Memorial (83), and Wyandotte (39).

Wayne and Belleville grapplers got their share of gold medals.

Coach Gerald Malacek's Tigers were represented in the winner's circle by James Bishar and Darryl Elder, while Wayne received championship performances from Rob Eccles and Rich Malta.

Bishar destroyed Fordson's Fadi Abullah, 10-3, to claim the gold in the 105-pound class, while Elder pinned Lincoln Park in 4:34 to emerge from the mats with the crown for the 167-pound class.

Eccles won an 8-1 decision over Monroe's Terry Bourdina and Malta also floored Monroe's Jim Kincade in 1:13 to take the title in the 126 pound class.

Dave Reed, a 98-pounder, and Jeff Budd, who competed in the 185-pound class, also earned third place medals for Belleville at the league championships.

High school wrestlers this week will compete in the state districts in hopes of qualifying for the regional finals a week from Saturday.

Most local high school teams will travel to Ypsilanti High School for their district tests.

Ypsi will host Wayne Memorial as well as Westland John Glenn. Other schools represented at Ypsilanti are Ann Arbor Huron, Ann Arbor Pioneer, Plymouth Canton, Plymouth Salem, the Farmington Schools, Garden City, Livonia Churchill, Franklin, Stevenson, Northville, Novi, Redford, Detroit Catholic Central, Redford Union and South Lyon.

Belleville and Romulus will head for Temperance Bedford, home of the perennial Class A state title contender. Joining the two local schools will be Dearborn, Edsel Ford, Fordson, Crestwood, Woodhaven, Here is a rundown on the 1986 Wolverine 'A' Conference Wrestling Championships:

Glenn gymnasts edge Wayne Memorial

Chalk one up by one point for Westland John Glenn who claimed a close 119.55 to 118.95 victory over natural rival, Wayne Memorial in gymnastics last week.

Wayne wasted a superb overall performance by Teri Bolla who picked up a pair of first places. She carded a 9.0 in winning the vault and also earned a first for her performance in floor exercises. She was awarded an 8.7 score.

Duplicating Bolla's double win was Glenn's Debbie Tomasko who won the bars with a 7.95 and turned in an 8.35 in winning the balance beam event. Debbie also was second in the vault (8.55) and second in the floor exercise event (8.35).

"It was an excellent meet," said Jean Hawley, Glenn coach. "And it was close all the way."

Bolla and Glenn's Angie Temelko tied for second place on the bar.

The Westlanders also enjoyed a 121.9 to 119.65 victory over Plymouth Canton last week as Debbie again won two events: vault (8.5) and floor exercise (8.75) while Angie contributed bars with an 8.1 score. Canton got into the victory circle with Sharon Moran who posted an 8.1 in winning the bars.

After traveling to Northville on Monday, the Westlanders return to action tonight at Dearborn.

Canton cagers get their 'margin of revenge' from Churchill

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It took a second half rally and some excellent defense, but Plymouth Canton earned its "margin of revenge" over Livonia Churchill Friday night.

Trailing 21-6 at the end of the first period, Canton shook off their blues and came back to defeat their Western Lakes Activities Association basketball rivals, 67-60.

The victory boosted Canton's WLAA record to 7-5 (8-7) on the season and it also evened the score with Churchill which won the first encounter between the two, 46-44.

"I have to give our kids a lot of credit," said Canton Coach Tom Niemi. "After trailing by as much as 17 points (19-2) they refused to buckle, and they fought back. Usually when you trail by that much, you get discouraged."

Canton sank only three field goals, missed easy shots and was plagued with turnovers in the first eight minutes of the duel, giving Churchill an opportunity to build up what appeared to be an insurmountable lead. However, Canton outscored Churchill 17-13 in the second period to close the gap to 34-23 at the half-way point.

Paced by Joel Mies and Tyrone Reeves, who each scored 17 for the evening, and the outstanding board work of Jeff Lyle, Canton took command in the third period when they managed to outscore Churchill 21-12.

"It was a tremendous comeback on our part," Niemi said. "Lyle contributed 10 rebounds and also 12 points while Mies and Reeves began hitting key buckets. And you have to give Roger Tryce a lot of credit his contribution on defense."

Entering the fourth frame, Canton had a one point deficit, 46-45, to make up and four free throws by Mies erased that.

For the period, Canton enjoyed a 23-14 advantage.

Earlier in the week, Mies and Reeves provided the scoring ammunition to shoot down Farmington 71-64. Mies tossed in a game high 21 points while Reeves accounted for 19. Canton also received 10 points from Dan Olszewski and nine from Lyle.

"It was an excellent game to watch," said Niemi. "Although we led from wire-to-wire, we never had more than a 10-point spread."

Canton jumped ahead 16-11 after one period, and both teams put 14 points on the scoreboard in the second. Ahead 30-25 at the intermission, Canton widened the margin with a 19-14 scoring advantage in the third period and hung on despite a Farmington fourth period rally that fell short.

Canton will get a shot at Farmington Harrison's untarnished record.

Belleville tankers top Glenn, 45-36

Outstanding performances by its relay teams lifted Belleville to a 45-36 victory over non-conference swim rival, Westland John Glenn, last week.

With Matt Stoelton, Greg Lynch, Dave Traskos and Martin Duda combining their efforts in the 200-medley, the Tigers turned back their counterparts for a victory in the medley relay. Belleville was clocked in 1:47.77.

Belleville also claimed a first in the 400-yard freestyle relay where Stoelton, Mike Ackron, Eric Snider and Greg Lynch were clocked in a 3:27.37.

The Tigers also chalked up three firsts in individual events.

Jeff Thompson turned in the winning time for the 200-yard freestyle when he hit the wall in 1:58.53, while teammate Wally Rocho-wiak was close behind in second with a 2:01.47.

Eric Snider put the 50-yard freestyle over into the Tiger win column as he churned out a 23.97 in winning the event.

Stoelton's 24.25 gave the winners a second in that event.

In the meantime, Belleville freestyler Jeff Miller outraced teammate, John Kapitan, to the wire in the 100, winning the event in 55.85. Kapitan's second place time was recorded as 56.59.

Belleville finished second and third in the 200-yard individual medley thanks to the performances of Mike Ackron (2:12.87) and Eric Lawson (2:21.31), respectively. In diving, Raul Estrada was runner-up with 219.85 points.

The Tigers also were second and third in the 100-yard butterfly thanks to Traskos (1:00.24) and Martin Duda (1:01.56). They also were runner-up for the 500 as Ari Karr came in second (5:35.46) and Doug Duff finished third (5:52.50).

Ron Kobish's contribution to the winning cause was a third place in the 100-yard backstroke (1:11.45) while Tom McClen-don was second in the 100-yard breaststroke. He was clocked in 1:12.74.

State finals set

The 1986 boys swimming and diving championships will be conducted on Fri. and Sat., March 7-8.

Down the drain

Task force seeks to end flooding

By CURT JORDET
ANP Staff Writer

Farmers in western Wayne County will be able to clean debris from county ditches without charge this year under a proposal brought before state conservation officials by a special task force designed to study the causes of flooding in the area.

According to Wayne County Commissioner Milton Mack, the proposal is just one of several that the task force is preparing to recommend in an effort to alleviate the problem of early spring flooding which has plagued farmers throughout the county.

"It's a big problem, and very definitely a growing concern," said Mack. "The task force has been looking at several ways of alleviating the flooding condition, and cluttered ditches are a major cause."

Mack said the problem of maintaining clean ditches is compounded by the fact that funding cannot be supplied by either the state or county. "The cost of cleaning the ditches is assessed against the residents who benefit from it," he said. "Consequently, there isn't that much money or manpower available through the Wayne County Drain Commissioner."

One solution, said Mack, would be to waive the fees normally associated with such cleaning processes and allow individual farmers to clean ditches on their own property.

"It is getting to be quite a problem," said Mack. "Many of the county drains have not been cleaned for some time, and some of the drains actually have full-grown trees popping out of them.

"That's like putting a dam right smack in the middle. It just doesn't allow for proper run-off, and flooding is bound to occur."

Flooding has been a major early-season headache for farmers living in Canton, Van Buren, Romulus, Sumpter and Huron townships, particularly since it severely hampers plans for spring planting.

Mack will address the problem when he speaks at the annual meeting of the Wayne County Soil Conservation District on Feb. 26 at the Wayne County Extension and Education Center, 5454 Venoy in Wayne. Further information on the meeting can be obtained by calling 721-6550.

Tin Lizzie
Belleville Rd and I-94
Belleville, Michigan
MC/V/AE/CB

I knew Daddy took the L-O-N-G way there. He said he knew where he was going. HA! He just didn't want to lose face to everyone else in the car.

I told him to take I-275 south to I-94 west, but noooooo, he had to have his own way and drive through Canton, down Canton Center Road to where it turns into Belleville Road. (Right there by the "De Swan Motel.") Then we went ALL THE WAY down Belleville Road to the expressway.

My stomach was growling. I was hungry and I wanted to eat. Hell hath no fury like a hungry food critic.

I remember telling a few of my friends that we were going to "check out" the Tin Lizzie. The responses weren't that great. But I cannot tell a lie, first impressions really sold me.

The hostess who greeted us at the door, seeing that we were a family now that little brother Jeffy had made his debut on Dec. 29, asked if we wanted the BIG corner booth with a "little more privacy." Sure, why not?

On our way to the booth, we strolled past two tables, one of which had a couple of people (?) who had just returned from what looked like an all-you-can-eat pig trough. I mean really folks, two plates, heaping with chow mein, chicken and enough mostacholli to feed 40 at an Italian wedding.

Okay, forget the sights, I was really impressed with the nicely lit dining area, the big roomy booths with thick, red padded seats, pretty tablecoverings, citronella candles and great pictures of people who look like my great-grandma Nelson. Asking if we wanted a high chair or booster, I opted to kneel during dinner. This gave me the opportunity to check on Jeffy's progress throughout.

Our waitress came to take our drink orders. Daddy ordered an iced tea. Kinda hard to blow iced tea. Mama was celebrating and decided to have a Hummer. At almost $3, it was very disappointing. Mom said there was more cracked ice than ice cream. I had a coke. Our waitress was kind enough to bring it in an unbreakable tumbler, without request.

We then ordered an appetizer of potato skins and a bowl of homemade vegetable soup. The skins were great. Loaded with mozzarella, bacon bits and sour cream, it was refreshing to have something come from the broiler rather than a microwave.

The vegetable soup, although nothing to write home about to grandma, was homemade with big chunks of fresh carrot, celery, green beans, tomatoes and shreds of beef.

Dad ordered the orange roughly but couldn't understand why the restaurant charges an extra buck for a trip to the salad bar. That buck made his orange roughly a little pricey at $9.50.

Mom ordered the prime rib sandwich. I warned her. After seeing our friends in the next booth with the $4.25 pig out buffet, I didn't think that this was the place to be ordering prime rib. I was right.

In addition to being overdone, it was gristly and tough. I ordered the lasagna. Not bad. The sauce was flavorful and loaded with herbs. I wonder if today's lasagne ends up on tomorrows's "pig out" buffet?

Getting back to Dad's pricey orange roughly, Mom ended up eating most of it because she didn't enjoy her sandwich. The roughly was fair to middling, a bit overdone, but not much. It was very mild and slightly sweet just like good roughly should be. The baked potato was humongous and plate was nicely garnished with curly lettuce and tomato.

Dad gave us all a sample of his $1 extra visit to the salad bar. The salad dressing was out of a Hidden Valley jar. The lettuce was okay, but filled with a lot of that purple filler stuff. There were the usual croutons, onions, eggs, under-ripe cherry tomatoes, but, alas, something to make the trip worthwhile, some tasty marinated mushrooms, some cold pasta salads (I think it was leftover mostacholli) and some feta cheese.

The rolls that came to the table were blase. I would rather have had some of the homemade crazy breadsticks available on the pigout buffet. (Dad stole one to let me have a taste.)

We ended our meal licking our lips as the waitress told us about the homemade strawberry, hot fudge and pineapple sundaes. Mom ordered some plain cheesecake. I loved it but Mom and Dad said it was a bit too lemony and then said something like Tin Lizzie should take some lessons from Lindy's in New York City. Coffee was served in cute little covered individual carafes. Nich touch.

Now for the bad news, dinner for three (Jeffy didn't even wake up during the whole affair) came to a whopping $24, not counting the tip. That was with just ONE drink, one appetizer, one soup, one trip to the salad bar and one dessert, plus our entrees. A little steep for a family on a budget. I must admit though, for a Thursday night, the place was filling up and the bar was loaded. (I got some free popcorn when I wandered in the bar and noticed the popcorn machine.)

On a scale of 0-10, with 0 being the spinach grandmas tries to pass off as broccoli and 10 being one of Daddy's caesar salads, I rate the Tin Lizzie an honest 7.

For your info, the all-you-can-eat $4.25 buffet is served every night. Dad took one look and decided that we wanted to walk out of the restaurant, and not be "herded." The buffet is one place to go if you really want to eat your money's worth.

P.S. From the "I knew it was too good to be true" department: We visited the Pizza Barn in Romulus last week. They noticed us so we will just say thanks for a nice pizza. I came home and checked my notes from the judging and I know that what we has was NOT the same pizza that won the Best Pizza in the area last summer. We also discovered that there IS a downtown Romulus. Cute little place with just five tables and a bustling take-out business. They even have a rope-pull contraption that opens the door for you when your hands are loaded with pizza and other food to go. Don't order the antipasto.

Glamour girl

Westland resident to grace 'TEEN cover?

By CURT JORDET
ANP Staff Writer

The thought of becoming a cover model on one of the top selling magazines for teenagers can get the blood pumping in the heart of any girl who dreams of fame and fortune.

After all, Cheryl Tiegs got her start that way. So did Christina Ferrare, Cindy Harrell and Cheryl Ladd, to name a few.

But while most girls eventually give up their dreams to pursue a more realistic career, one John Glenn High School sophomore is continuing to dream these days of the time when her name could become as well recognized as any of those listed above.

Rachel Scott, a 16-year-old aspiring model who lives in Westland, was selected recently as a semifinalist in the 1986 'TEEN Magazine Great Model Search after a picture she sent to the magazine was chosen by a panel of approving judges.

As a semifinalist, Scott's photograph appears in the February issue of 'TEEN along with 15 other candidates from her region. If the cards fall her way, Scott could be selected in June or July as one of 16 super semifinalists and, eventually, wind up in the August contest finals as one of the top new faces of 1986.

"It's all very exciting," said Scott of her selection. "I just submitted my picture to the magazine for one of the contests that they run each month, not really expecting to win. But the next thing I knew they were telling me that I had been selected as a semifinalist."

It's not as if Scott is a newcomer to the modeling world. As a recent graduate of the John Casablanca Modeling School, Scott has participated in several fashion shows and occasionally tries her hand at mannequin modeling as well.

Scott won a vast assortment of make-up from Maybelline for her part in the contest as well as a Great Model Search t-shirt.

Rachel Scott of Westland is hoping that she can become the next in a long line of success stories who got their start on the cover of 'TEEN Magazine. Scott has been selected as a semifinalist in the 1986 Great Model Search being conducted by the magazine, and is in line to receive a modeling contract and a new car if she is selected as the top new face of 1986.

CITY OF ROMULUS

DOG LICENSE

All dogs in the City of Romulus must be licensed. This is for your benefit. If your family pet ever slips its leash, this policy could keep your child from being heartbroken. Also, if you are bitten, knowing that the dog is licensed and has had rabies shots can save you from worrying about a painful series of inoculations. The law was designed to benefit all City residents, whether or not they own dogs.

A City dog license costs $5.00 for both male and female dogs. Licenses for spayed and neutered dogs cost only $1.50. A lower license fee for these dogs is intended to help control the rise in the canine population. Senior citizens (age 65 or older) pay only $2.50 or $7.75 per license. Proof of rabies vaccination must be presented when applying for a new dog license or renewal. March 1st of every year is the deadline for license renewal. A late fee of $1.50, in addition to the regular fee will be charged after that date.

TO LICENSE YOUR DOG

Bring a rabies vaccination certificate and an affidavit or Veterinary Certificate for spayed female or neutered male dogs, as well as proof of your age, if you qualify for the senior citizen discount, to:

Office of the City Treasurer
Romulus Municipal Building
11111 Wayne Road
Romulus, Michigan

between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. - Monday through Friday. A license will be issued to you at that time. The license tag must be worn by the animal at all times, attached by a collar of leather, iron, copper, brass or other durable material. Puppies must be licensed when they reach six months of age.

PENALTIES

Any person not adhering to any of the regulations outlined in this letter will be in violation of the provisions of the City's Animal Control Ordinance.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION:

Please call the Romulus Animal Control Center at 941-0666 Ext. 245, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. For emergencies after hours, call the Romulus Police Department 941-8400. The Animal Control Center will respond to all calls reporting licensed and unlicensed dogs running loose, injured animals, dead animals, dangerous dogs and excessive barking dogs.
